SAVANNAH, Ga. - The NCAA Division II Champion Armstrong Atlantic State women's tennis team earned a "Generations" award from the Savannah Sports Council on Tuesday at the organization's annual awards banquet at the Marriott Savannah Riverfront.

The Pirates, who knocked off BYU-Hawaii, 5-2, in May for their third straight and sixth overall NCAA DII National Championship, earned a Generations award for a second straight year. The award is given to an individual or team that has excelled in their given sport over the past year and is sponsored by Georgia Power.

AASU head coach Simon Earnshaw, assistant coach David Secker and players Martina Beckmann and Alisa Kagukina attended the banquet on Tuesday.

Also honored during the banquet was Ashley Dearing, Jr., who won the John Hodges OASIS Award posthumously. Dearing and his family has awarded the Ashley Dearing Cup to the top free-throw shooter on the AASU Men's Basketball team since 1955 and Dearing was a fixture in the Savannah amateur athletic scene for more than 50 years.
